Notable features:

Number 908 has a glazed Roman brick facade which must date from the 1880's or 1890's. Numbers 902-906 and 924 have been seriously damaged by later additions and changes. The tax statements from 1839 and 1840 indicate that there were two shops in this block and that there was a two-story brick back building behind a wooden front building which was presumably one of the buildings that remained in the earlier period and showed on the 1823 map. If the buildings 1839-40 refer to structures between Amity and Schroeder, then the only ones that they might be are 920-924 in which event they would have had shops in the bottom from the time they were first built.

Environmental context:

None of the buildings are clearly vacant throughout but many are vacant or used for storage only on upper floors. Street is two-way and not terrible traffic-wise. Scale is good and should be retained. Marginal commercial uses have killed the street.
